Oxygen plays a primary role in our overall health and well-being. The oxygen concentration in a healthy human body is approximately three times that of air.

All metabolic processes in the body are regulated by oxygen and 80% of all our metabolic energy production is created by oxygen. Oxygen is vital for proper metabolic functions, blood circulation, the assimilation of nutrients, digestion, and the elimination of cellular and metabolic wastes. Even our ability to think, feel, and act require oxygen-related energy production. It is no surprise then that scientists have determined that low levels of oxygen can disrupt the body's ability to function correctly. Dr. Arthur C. Guyton, M.D. included this statement in The Textbook of Medical Physiology. "All chronic pain, suffering and diseases are caused from a lack of oxygen at the cell level." As the body's oxygen levels decrease, cellular energy is reduced, and disease organisms find conditions more ideal for proliferation.

Don't we get enough oxygen just from breathing? No. Because pollution is everywhere, we don't get enough oxygen just from breathing. As toxins contaminate the air, they replace oxygen molecules in the air. What's more, stress (emotional or physical), lack of exercise, infections, medications, viruses, drugs and alcohol, highly processed fast foods, and polluted water further reduce the bio-available oxygen in the blood stream.
